AP623 UNDERSTANDING COMMERCE, CULTURE, & CONGREGATIONS (1 Credit)

Jan. 8-11, Tues.-Fri. 1:30-4:30 PM, Room 4

This course provides an introduction to “cultural hermeneutics” and methods of interpreting the patterns of everyday life in which congregants dwell. The instruction aims to equip future pastors with various principles and approaches for maintaining a rich, ongoing and multi-dimensional perspective concerning the cultural context in which their congregations are situated. In addition to examining the role of commerce and consumer behavior in shaping culture, particular attention will be focused on how the structure of designed spaces (via the practice of architecture), the drama of daily living (using models of theatre), and the substance of experiences (as expressions of value) shape the patterns of everyday existence.

NT521 THE DIVINITY OF JESUS CHRIST IN THE NEW TESTAMENT (1 Credit)

Over the last thirty years, a significant number of NT scholars have independently argued for an early and explosive emergence of belief in the divinity of Jesus amongst the earliest Christians. The work of this group of scholars, sometimes referred to as the Early High Christology Club (EHCC), stands in contrast to other positions which have either seen evidence for the divinity of Christ in the NT as slim, or as the product of late development through extraneous pagan influence. This course will consist of four main parts seeking: 1) to evaluate the proposals of some of the leading EHCC scholars (e.g. Bauckham, Hurtado, Tilling et al) about how Jesus’ divinity is communicated by NT authors, 2) to propose a refined model that draws on their work, 3) to survey some of the different ways the NT writers witness to the divinity of Christ and 4) to explore how the Son’s depiction as divine in the NT relates to other key areas of NT theology, in particular, soteriology.
